

A portion of the Knowledge Athletes Web site (www.KnowledgeAthletes.com), is devoted to Deaf and Hard of Hearing students. Learn how you can set up a virtual classroom on the Web site and post a video or text and then have students blog about the content. Through this innovative approach, students will engage socially while practicing literacy and technology skills. Dave will explore a multitude of options available through the Web site, including his trademarked Grammaticons and Grammaticon™ technology, which allow students and teachers to comment and assess student responses. Come and learn about this cutting edge technology and how to use it productively toward enhanced student engagement and achievement through the world of educationally relevant social networking™. As part of the session, participants will build and link online classrooms to fully experience the capabilities and ease of use of Knowledge Athletes technologies.