Reprofile

President Clinton has just announced major reductions in the size of his White House staff. I believe it is almost time for President Simone to do the same.

Since first coming to this Institute in 1980, I have seen the size of the administrative and support staff increase dramatically. New buildings have been built and lounge areas in old buildings have been converted, all to house the growing administration. RIT has grown much too heavy in the area of middle management. Take a look at the corporate structure some time and trace the number of levels of management between the President and, for instance, a Physical Plant engineer. Above the engineer is the chief engineer, the engineering supervisor, the director of construction and engineering, the director of physical plant, the vice president of finance and administration, and finally, the president. Of course, then there are numerous "assistant" and "associate" administrators.

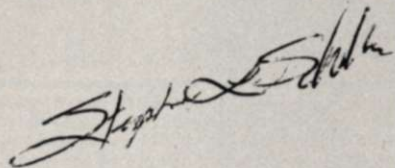

I do not want to make it sound like I am picking on Physical Plant. I am not. I merely chose them as an example because I had heard one of their employees complaining about how difficult it was to get anything approved due to the numerous levels of management. I am sure there are departments with an even more vertical administrative structure than Physical Plant's.

For a school that teaches Total Quality Management, RIT uses very few of the TQM principles within its own administration. Primarily, RIT needs to empower its front line employees, to enable them to handle students' problems when they occur. It is extremely frustrating to try to get something accomplished, only to find out the person you must get approval from first has to seek approval from their superior, who naturally, is on vacation this week.

One other important factor RIT needs to keep in mind, if and when it restructures, is the need to cultivate a prevailing attitude that we are all here, working together, to better the Institute and to provide a better educational experience for the students. I will never forget a planning meeting four years ago at which an RIT employee could not go on record for being present or for providing any input. The employee's department was in the middle of a feud with the department running the meeting and his boss had instructed him not to help out. This was not a meeting to plan some benefit for the department in question. This was a meeting to examine and plan an improvement for the campus. Unfortunately, because of office politics, the plans were not as strong as they could have been. The students, and the Institute community as a whole, suffered.

I realize these are people's jobs and people's livelihoods we are talking about. In addition to being a student here, I work here full time. It could be my position that is eliminated. But if this Institute is to move forward, it must make some difficult decisions, even if it means some individuals will be forced to seek employment elsewhere. RIT can not continue to carry this administrative burden while keeping tuition low and the quality of education high.

Looking for a Job?

On Saturday, March 13 RIT's Minority Alumni Association will be sponsoring RIT's Career Focus '93. This event will include representatives from several Fortune 500 companies- including Digital Equipment Corporation, Texas Instruments, Eastman Kodak Company, IBM and National Semiconductor along with other local, regional, and national recruiters. The program emphasizes the recruitment of African Americans and Hispanics, but is open to RIT students and alumni, and anyone interested in meeting with recruiters.

This is the seventh year the committee has sponsored the event, giving companies looking for employees in a variety of disciplines a chance to meet face to face with students and others.

The fair runs from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Saturday, March 13, in the Union. For more information call Darlene Spafford in RIT's alumni relations office at X2587.

NTID Black History Month

Students and faculty and staff members of NTID have planned a variety of events to celebrate Black History Month, including a gallery exhibit, and a student variety show. All events are free and open to the public.

NTID's Sixth Annual Black History Month celebration will begin with an exhibit of watercolors by Luvon Sheppard, professor in RIT's College of Imaging Arts and Sciences. The exhibit will be on display February 8- 26 in the NTID Switzer Gallery.

The student variety show titled "Black Heritage" will take place from 7- 8:30 p.m. Friday, February 19 in the Robert F. Panara Theatre in the Lyndon Baines Johnson Building. The members of Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity and Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority will perform a Step Show, a synchronized, high-energy danceline. Other performers will depict the social life of African Americans in the United States, past and present.

Third Annual Photo Auction Donates $1,194

The American Red Cross Disaster Relief Fund recently received a check for $1,194 from the Technical Photography Student Association, a club of students enrolled in the Imaging and Photographic Technology program. The students organized and held the auction with the help of many area merchants and individuals who contributed photographic and other materials. This auction is the Third Annual Holiday Auction and it is organized each year by a different photographic student organization at RIT.

Spring Follies Auditions

Notices have been sent to all performing groups on campus announcing upcoming open auditions for "Spring Follies." This notice goes to all those closet comedians, singers, and dancers out there. Open auditions are scheduled for 10 a.m. on Saturday, February 13, in the 1829 Room in the Student Alumni Union. The "Spring Follies" are intended to become an annual event at RIT.

President Simone is expected to play jazz piano and Gerry Argetsinger, a magician, will serve as master of ceremonies. The performance is currently planned for 8 p.m. on March 19 in Ingle Auditorium and a reception will follow in the Student Alumni Union.

Former NTID Actor Named National Theatre of the Deaf's Associate Artistic Director

Camille L. Jeter, a six year member of The National Theatre of the Deaf, has been appointed Associate Artistic Director of the Tony Award-winning troupe. A native of Detroit, Jeter is from a three-generation Deaf family. She graduated from the Michigan School for the Deaf in 1978 and furthered her education at Rochester Institute of Technology's National Technical Institute for the Deaf. She toured as an actress with the Rochester theatre company, Sunshine Too.

Still To Come This Weekend...

Yes, it's Mardi Gras Weekend, and if you've missed headliner Paula Poundstone, the weekend is not yet a total loss. On Saturday, Hugh Masekela will be performing a Jazz Concert in Ingle Auditorium at 7 p.m. and 10 p.m. Also on Saturday night a scavenger hunt will begin at Grace Watson at 8 p.m. with prizes going to the top teams. Better wake up early Sunday morning if you plan to win the College Bowl Competition while enjoying free coffee and donuts. For those who would rather wake up and hit the slopes, Off-Campus Student Association is offering a trip to Kissing Bridge.

"Trendsetters for the 'Upliftment' of Humanity" would be one way to describe Alpha Phi Alpha, the first Greek letter organization recognized by RIT established for Blacks. Although their recognition was recent, Alpha Phi Alpha Mu Sigma Chapter has been chartered in Rochester since January 22, 1977. Along with their recognition, Alpha Phi Alpha has gained a greater exposure to the RIT community, one that is already showing the fraternity's positive influence on the campus.

There are nine men from RIT and three from the University of Rochester that make up the brothers of the Mu Sigma chapter of Alpha Phi Alpha. Unlike most fraternal chapters, the charter for Mu Sigma encompasses RIT, the University of Rochester, and Hobart College because there is a small percentage of African-American students at the three schools. The membership of the RIT chapter of Alpha Phi Alpha may be small, but there is justification. Alpha Phi Alpha is a highly selective fraternity with only the best men obtaining brotherhood. (The Mu Sigma chapter's membership will most likely increase in the next few years now that they are recognized by the Institute.) This can be seen on a world-wide scale with the ranks of Alpha's from other chapters including Duke Ellington, General Colin Powell, baseball great Jackie Robinson, W.E.B. DuBois, Frederick Douglas, Olympic track star Jesse Owens, talk show host Montel Williams, New York City mayor David Dinkins, former Dallas Cowboy Tony Dorsett, football great Art Shell, former Supreme Court Justice Thurgood Marshall, and the great Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., with the list continuing.

Alpha's performance captivated all who attended the evening's festivities.

As it can be seen, Alpha Phi Alpha goes for quality not quantity. Statistics also prove the high quality of Alpha Phi Alpha. Professionally, sixty percent of all Black doctors are Alphas, as are seventy-five percent of all Black lawyers, sixty-five percent of all Black dentists, and approximately ninety percent of all Black college presidents.

Alpha Phi Alpha is the oldest and largest Black Greek letter organization—founded at Cornell University on December 4, 1906. The founders of the fraternity, also known as the Seven Jewels, created the fraternity as a social and literary organization because of segregation and other problems facing Black college students. The Seven Jewels felt that because of these social problems they needed to come together for social and educational reasons. Upon that, their literary organization developed into a fraternity. Where as most fraternities traditionally resemble and take their ideals from that of the golden age of ancient Greece, most black Greek letter organizations gain their heritage from Africa. Alpha Phi Alpha uses images and songs depicting the sphinx pharos and other Egyptian heritage to represent their organization. Their basis for founding can be summed up in the aim of Alpha Phi Alpha, "Manly deeds, scholarship, and love for all mankind." Since that time Alpha Phi Alpha has grown internationally with approximately 200,000 brothers and over 500 graduate and undergraduate chapters across North America, Europe, the Caribbean, and Africa.

World-wide Alpha Phi Alpha works towards the 'upliftment' of African-Americans and positive social change for all mankind through programs such as the Million Dollar Drive to aid the NAACP, the National Urban League, the United Negro College Fund, and Project Alpha for the March of Dimes.

*"Alpha Phi Alpha

U of R and RIT Alpha Phi Alpha members formed basketball teams and played against each other for a winner-takes-all trophy.

Some of the members of 'FU,' the winners of the basketball tournament, accepted their trophy prior to the step show.

The Mu Sigma chapter of Alpha Phi Alpha was the first Black Greek letter organization to become recognized here at RIT last Spring. When the Mu Sigma chapter was chartered in 1977, there were conflicts between the national rules of Alpha Phi Alpha and the Greek recognition policies of RIT. However, in recent years both sides have changed in their views, and both RIT and the brothers of Alpha Phi Alpha felt recognition would be beneficial. Now that Alpha Phi Alpha has been recognized, and the recent the recognition of Alpha Kappa Alpha, a Black sorority, RIT will establish a National Pan-Hellenic Council. The NPHC is the governing body of Black Greek letter organizations, as is the Inter Fraternity Council for RIT's twelve fraternities, and Panhellenic Council is for RIT's five Greek women's organizations. All three governing bodies, NPHC, IFC, and Panhell, will be governed by RIT's Greek Council.

The local chapter of Alpha Phi Alpha is a multi-faceted group that has become very involved with the RIT, U of R, and Rochester communities. The activities of the chapter have proven to be beneficial. Earlier this year, Alpha Phi Alpha held "A Voteless People is a Hopeless People" voter registration drive. This drive is done on a national level and was started back in the 1930's. In the fall they also held the "Black and Gold Ball and Pageant," an annual event which raises money to provide scholarships for graduating high school seniors in the Rochester area who will be attending either RIT or the U of R. This year Miss Meka Jones won the award of Miss Black and Gold, she will go on to represent the Mu Sigma chapter in the New York State Ball and Gold Pageant at the state convention to be held here at RIT on March 20.

Alpha Phi Alpha has also sponsored the "Reel Black Series" which was a month long film series that honored African-American film makers. The Mu Sigma chapter also does things such as pass out safe sex flyers, hold resume writing workshops, and publish a weekly newsletter that highlights a famous African-American.

Most recently the fraternity held its first annual Alpha Week which ran from February 1-7. On Monday, Alpha Week was kicked off by "Bridging the Gap" a cultural diversity workshop which brought about some good discussion on gays in the military and affirmative action. The focus of Tuesday was an oratorical contest with the theme of "Restructuring the Black Family," winners were awarded gift certificates to Campus Connections.

Wednesday and Thursday of Alpha Week were the first annual Black Expo held in the Student Alumni Union. Businesses owned by African-American proprietors in the Rochester area were brought in to set up displays and sold merchandise. On Friday, a candlelight vigil was held for Thurgood Marshall, honoring him and his passing into the Omega chapter of Alpha Phi Alpha. The Omega chapter is a recognition for deceased Alpha Phi Alpha brothers. Saturday Alpha Phi Alpha hosted its second annual basketball tournament at the U of R and followed up with a party and step show in the evening. The week ended on Sunday with a morning church service at the New Life Fellowship Church. The brothers of Alpha Phi Alpha felt the week was very successful and found ways to expand on it next year.

*"We party hard,
we stay up late,
but most of all
we graduate.
We're scholars making dollars."*

This spring Alpha Phi Alpha will be co-sponsoring The Image Awards with Delta Sigma Theta, a Black sorority at the U of R. They will honor student leaders from RIT and the U of R.

Even with all this extensive community service and educational work, Alpha Phi Alpha is still an extensively social fraternity. They have a saying that expresses this, "We party hard, we stay up late, but most of all we graduate. We're scholars making dollars." Quite often they hold dance parties on campus, which usually have a good attendance. Alpha Phi Alpha only wishes that there could be a greater multi-cultural turn out at their events.

One thing that Black Greek letter organizations are known for is stepping. Stepping is a kind of dance that is a form of expressing the African heritage and love for one's fraternity/sorority. It originated from the tribal dances of Africa and is now a method of competition among black Greek letter organizations. A friendly rivalry exists among all Black Greek letter organizations and which fraternity is the best (in which stepping plays a big part) is considered "Running the yard." From what people say Alpha Phi Alpha "Runs this yard."

Alpha Phi Alpha would like to thank Kappa Delta Rho, Zeta Tau Alpha, and Dorothy Brown for making their transition into RIT's Greek Community a welcome one.

WRITTEN BY CHRIS GATES

When I was asked if I wanted to report on the Debate between former Black Panther Party members Bobby Seale and Eldridge Cleaver, I jumped at the opportunity to interview two men who helped advance the struggle of African Americans in the late 1960's and early 1970's. These men along with other men brandishing shotguns and pistols in plain view to all; these men who followed police in order to make certain that Blacks were not abused by police; these men who were attacked by police and fought back and killed many of the same officers who killed their members in a gun fight were here at RIT to express their views on Black Activism versus Political Action.

BACC allowed me to accompany the former Black Panther Party members before and after their debate so that I could write a more comprehensive story. This important event would only be the commencement of Black History Month festivities here at RIT. These two speakers were just the spark to set off what will be an informative month.

Bobby Seale was the first of the two men that I met. He wore a black beret in the style of Black Panther which read "Seize The Time, Reach." This advertises the project he heads in his home of Philadelphia. My first reaction was that I had seen this man before. The charismatic appeal of Seale was later displayed in his memories of the Black Panther Party during the debate.

The SAU was full of tables selling African clothing, jewelry, and oils. The atmosphere was quite different than any other day I've seen in the SAU. It was filled with music and celebration from the Alpha Phi Alpha Black Expo and seemed a lot more sunnier in the SAU lobby than usual. Mr. Seale and I sat a table where he could sell his books.

A point that our American media never divulged is that television viewers saw, but were never informed, that these were college men who debated the issues of their times on how to solve the problems of racism in America. This "Black Intelligencia" that the two men described was the combined mind power of Black college students in the United States who defied the systems. The hypocrisy that both Bobby Seale and the late Huey P. Newton saw in the racist system and the killing of Malcolm X in 1965 led the two men to found The Black Panther Party for Self Defense in October of 66'.

"If Malcolm had not been killed, the Black Panther Party would not have been formed," Seale told me as we sat in the SAU. Seale explained to me the principles that this party was based on. The most important of these principles was "to organize Black political, electoral, and community unity." The theme that summed up their beliefs was the "Ballot or the Bullet," which essentially meant that the party preferred to use the vote to gain electoral power in the Black community. But if this was denied, violence would certainly erupt.

Along with this principle were the principles which included stressing communal education, establishment of businesses, teaching of self-defense, and improvement of housing. This ten point listing of the founding principles of the Black Panther Party are listed in Bobby Seale's book "Seize The Time."

THE STRUGGLE & THE DEBATE

Former Black Panthers Bobby Seal (left) and Eldridge Cleaver came to RIT Wednesday February 3, to talk about their past and about future race relations in the U.S.

Prior to the debate, Bobby Seal talked to members of the Black Awareness Coordinating Committee in their lounge.

Bobby Seale was a army mechanic who, after leaving, went to college at Oakland's Merick College to study mechanical engineering. Seale met Huey P. Newton and became involved in discussion both in and out of class about the civil rights movement. After becoming interested in the works of African-American authors and leaders, especially the actions of Malcolm X, he and Newton formed the Black Panther Party.

Bobby Seale, who is a powerful speaker, told us many stories about the Black Panther Party. Examples are his views on former Party member Alain Edwards who has just written a book about her involvement in the party, how co-founder Huey Newton developed the slogan "Power To The People," how Newton ran for president in 1972, and that the first Black Student Union was started by Newton at Merick College.

Mr. Cleaver arrived and explained that he was sorry that he was late. He had gone back to the hotel for some food. After the meeting of Seale and Cleaver in the BACC lounge, which was cordial but somewhat cold, we skirted up to the backstage of the Ingle Auditorium.

The auditorium was almost full; something I didn't expect. After an opening by Minister of Information Brandon Howard, a thought provoking speech by a student, and the President of BACC, the two speakers presented their sides. Bobby Seale began and explained to the audience the principles of the Black Panther Party. Mr. Seale also described the state of race relations in that days the Black Panther Party, and the progression of these relations. This progression started with the elimination of segregation, then he moved to the elimination of disenfranchisement of Blacks, and it is currently at the stage of eliminating economic exploitation of Blacks in America.

In a slow and deliberate style, opposite of the style of Seale, Eldridge Cleaver talked about why he decided to join the Black Panther Party. Cleaver, who spent time in prison where he wrote the book "Soul On Ice," was involved with a revolutionary newspaper before his meeting with the Black Panthers. This decision came after meeting Black Panther Party members in San Francisco. There he gained respect for them and came to realize what they stood for was important in solving the problems that Blacks faced in the civil rights movement. Mr. Cleaver's views did not seem that much different than that of his fellow party member. The surprising aspect of Eldridge Cleaver was that he supported the Governor that had barred down on the Black Panther Party for president—Ronald Reagan. He has recently changed his views on both the Reagan and Bush administrations.

When asked about the problems that Blacks face with drugs, both men believe that many Black leaders sold out to the "Just Say No" slogans and didn't do much to create solutions. Seale believes that the problems of drugs in America are a result of a conspiracy of the government to kill minorities.

The audience, which was very diverse, was pleased with the debate between the two men's. Afterwards, many people followed the speakers the for autographs, including me. The two presentations were interesting. Although they were supposed to be at odds in their style of solving today's problems in the African-American community, I didn't see that much of a difference in the means the two went about to achieve the ends of racial equality.

Loaded Weapon Shoots Blanks

The recipe is simple. Take a most of Lethal Weapon, a small chunk of Basic Instinct, throw in some Silence of the Lambs, a touch of Die Hard, and a pinch of Wayne's World. Put it in a blender and mix well...but leave the cover off. The result is Loaded Weapon/National Lampoon's latest spoof.

This mostly-star (as opposed to all-star) cast includes Emilio Estevez (Young Guns) Charles C. Jackson, Jon Lovitz (Saturday Night Live) William Shatner (Star Trek), and Tim Curry (Clue, Rocky Horror Picture Show) with cameos from such stars as Whoopi Goldberg, James Doohan, Alyse Beasley (Moonlighting) Charlie Sheen and Bruce Willis.

The story is one that most cop movies have employed but it is executed in a sick and twisted silly way. An ex-cop (Goldberg) finds out that a local girls club is a front for a major drug operation headed by a powerful (?) drug lord (Shatner). She gets killed, but not before hiding the evidence. You'd better pay attention at that point because it's the only plot indication there is. From then on, the movie is so busy being a take off on other movies (mostly the Lethal Weapon series) that it is hard to remember that there is actually a story trying (desperately) to unfold.

Emilio Estevez did mediocre in his first comedy role, but he is far outshined by William Shatner (arrogant as ever) and Tim Curry who seems to be made to play the evil but lovable villain. The ironic thing, is that the writing was so bad that both Shatner and Curry came off as amateurs at best. Unfortunately the talent of the actors was wasted.

Before the movie started, a local D.J. welcomed the crowd to the special preview. He said that he hoped that this would turn into a movie that would be watched again and again and would join the ranks of other great National Lampoon movies such as Animal House. It became clear very early that it did not deserve to hold the National Lampoon label and it seemed impossible to even think of this movie and Animal House in the same concept.

This did have the potential to be a good movie. The writers could have made an hysterical comedy spoof without jamming the fact that it was a take off on popular action films down our throats constantly. The fact that it wasn't made me feel as though the writers didn't think that the audience was intelligent enough to figure out that we were watching a movie that was a take off rather than an original. I for one do not like to have my intelligence insulted. The short length of the movie ended up being a blessing.

Every movie, no matter how bad does have its place. This one may be good as a rental on a discount day when you are in a silly mood. I must admit that there were funny parts that I enjoyed. I can't however recommend that you waste seven bucks and your time to go see it.

Where Can You Run?

Jean-Claude Van Damme has a new flick "No Where to Run", which is not the same as all his other movies, with less high jumps and kicking, but plenty of punching and grunts. It is the first film in which Van Damme shows human emotions instead of being the "lean, mean, fighting machine" that he usually is. This action-packed flick really keeps you on your toes.

Meet Sam (played by Van Damme), a good man who made some mistakes and is running from the law. The movie begins with Sam riding in a bus—one transporting prisoners to jail—which ends up getting overturned by another car trying to stop it. Who was driving this car? It's Sam's buddy who is helping him to escape. After injuring both guards aboard the bus, Sam and his friend proceed to the getaway car and prepare to drive off into the sunset, before Sam's friend gets shot by a prison guard on the bus that is believed to be dead. A hurt Sam drives off, buries his friend, and looks for a place to stay until he can think of a plan to leave. He camps out in the country woods, on private property. This land is owned by a woman who would later become his love interest.

The family who owns the land, a young widow and her two little kids Mookie (played by Kieran Culkin) and Bea, have problems of their own. Not knowing that Sam is camping out in the woods, they are desperately trying to hang on to their home, one that threatens to be taken away in order to make room for other houses, stores, malls and the like. If the house is not sold willingly, the family will be forced to sell it. How are they forced? They are intimidated by a near-by farm burning down, a slaughtered cow, and even thugs coming out of no where to make sure (physically) that the house will be sold. It is during one of these episodes, where Sam hears a cry for help, that he suddenly appears and helps. Although not welcomed with open arms at first by this young widow, she eventually finds it in her heart to trust him. The young boy, Mookie, is the first one to befriend Sam, but in the end the whole family grows to love him.

Scenes range from Sam's past catching up to him and his leaving. While on the road he realizes he has to help the family and he comes back. With the final scene erupting with action and Sam kicking some butt, it ends realistically enough with Sam, handcuffed, being led to the authorities. The words "Will you wait for me?" touched many people in the theater. Several viewers were crying.

"No Where to Run" is an action packed movie full of life and love. There was a human side to this story, and I couldn't help but be touched by it. Van Damme's acting has also improved drastically, since he is now showing more emotion and in the end he even cries. So...if you want to see a movie with a heart as well as a fist (or Van Damme in the nude) you might want to check out "No Where to Run". If you are expecting a repeat of Jean-Claude's other movies, you might just want to run somewhere else.

Greek Tales

Book 1—Sorority Snow & The Seven Fraternity Guys

Once upon a time in a land with many bricks, there lived a sorority president who was having a hard time with school. As she filled out the next years Financial Aid package, she got a paper cut on her finger. Three drops of blood fell on the snow-white paper.

"How wonderful it would be to get a girl into this house with lips as red as blood, and hair black as ebony...without resorting to makeup or dyes," thought the President.

The next fall, the president's wish came true. A young girl had pledged, and she was all the president desired. As she initiated the young pledge, she gave her the pledge name, "Snow White." Within that very same quarter, the president failed out of school, leaving the house without a president.

In a rival sorority there to was a president, and she to was beautiful, but in a vain and annoying way. She was jealous of all other women in Panhellenic Council and on campus, but most of all she was jealous of Snow White.

This evil president's most prized possession was her magic mirror. Each day of the quarter, she gazed into and asked: "Mirror, mirror on the wall, which sorority is the fairest of all?" If the mirror told her that she was the most beautiful in school, then all was well. But if another girl, or worse, another sorority was named, then the president threw an enormous hissy, and then tried to ruin the girl and her reputation.

As the years passed, Snow White grew more and more beautiful, became president of her house, and her pure nature made everyone love and desire her—everyone but the rival president.

The evil president's fear was that Snow White would grow to be fairest in the land, get more girls in her house, and crush her own dwindling house.

At last, the dreaded day came. The evil president asked her magic mirror, "Mirror, mirror on the wall, which sorority is the fairest of all," and the mirror replied: "Her lips blood red, her hair like night, her virtue like snow, her nickname—Snow White!"

Fuming with anger, the evil president called one of the houses big brothers to her chambers.

"Take Snow White to the party this Friday...and ruin her reputation," she said.

The big brother lowered his head in grief and fear. He had no choice but to blindly obey the wishes of the evil president. Big brothers lived to serve.

Snow White saw no problem in going to the party with the big brother, after all, everyone knew her virtuous nature. It was great at the party, lots of beer, loud music, and plenty of friends everywhere. Snow White had no idea what was in store for her as she drank her beer, danced with the big brother, and sang the song to him as they danced.

At last, the big brother could stand it no longer. He dropped to his knees in front of Snow. "I can't take you home and 'do' you Snow," he cried, "even though it's the evil president's command. Run from this fraternity house and never return."

Then away went the big brother. On his way back to the sorority house he grabbed a bottle of Lubriderm, a Penthouse, and finished his "business." He then went to see the evil president.

Now alone in a fraternity house, Snow White ran out into the nature trails crying. After running for awhile, and being a little drunk, Snow White passed out in the woods. From nearby nests and burrows, the creatures of the forest gathered around her to keep an eye on her while she slept.

When she awoke, Snow noticed that there was a small cottage in the clearing nearby. She made her way into the house and was disgusted. There was a months worth of laundry piled on the floor, food left out in the open on tables, and beer cans everywhere! It was a fraternity of dirty drunken midgets!

"Well," she thought, "maybe they don't have a housekeeper. I'll just tidy up and surprise them, after all it's good Greek relations."

And indeed it was true, Snow and the fraternity dwarves (Mongo, Weasel, Doofus, Spanky, Grouchy, Pissy and Dingleberry) became friends. She told of her problems with other sororities, and the dwarves offered to let her stay. Besides, their house had never been so clean.

In the meantime back at the evil presidents house, the big brother had returned and told her that the "deed" was done. The evil president ran up to her room, laughing all the way.

"At last!" she gloated, "I will be the most beautiful!" And down the hallway she ran until she reached her room, and her magic mirror.

"Now, magic mirror on the wall, which sorority is the fairest of all?" she asked.

But the brutally honest mirror replied: "With the seven fraternity midgets she'll spend the night, the only sorority girl with virtue, Snow White."

She soon realized that the big brother had lied to her. She picked a stuffed animal off of her bed and used it to smash the mirror off her wall. Then, still shaking with rage, she made her way to the basement to concoct a spell.

First, she disguised herself as a homely, lonely, and gullible freshman. She then decided that she would make a poisoned wine cooler to place Snow into the sleeping death. Only loves first kiss could wake her, and since she was known to be a prude...it wouldn't happen. She placed the cooler among others in her book bag and then made her way into the forest.

It was near morning when the evil president reached the forest. By that time, the fraternity dwarves had left to go on a road trip even though they had classes. Snow decided that she was too tired to go to class as well, so she hung out, watched soap operas and ate cupcakes for the day. "Watch out for the evil president," said the dwarves as they hopped into their cars.

But when a poor, homely freshman appeared at the door, Snow thought she had nothing to fear. Indeed this girl may be a good prospect for rush. As a token of appreciation for the information on her house, she offered Snow a wine cooler. In drinking it, Snow White immediately fell to the floor—lifeless. Again the forest creatures came, and seeing Snow fallen, immediately took off to get the dwarves for help. But, when the dwarves made it back, it was too late. Maybe it was that DWI stop, or the fact Pussy had to go again. In the end, they did the only thing they could do—they built her a bed of beer cans and saran wrap in the forest. They then kept watch night and day.

After a time, a handsome president of a nearby fraternity heard people at parties tell of a lovely, now ex-president of a sorority, asleep or dead in the woods. He left the party on a bet to see if indeed she did exist. Since he was drinking at the party awhile, he knew as soon as he saw her lying there that he was "in love" with her. And so, Snow awoke and began to date the handsome president, who later dumped her when she gained too much weight, but then regretted it when she began taking aerobics twice a day and dropped the twenty pounds she had put on...and then some. The End.

Tigers Skating On Thin Ice

MEN'S HOCKEY

RIT 4, BROCKPORT 7

In the hockey game this past Friday night at Ritter Arena, the Tigers lost to a football team on skates. RIT took the early lead on a goal by Jasen Wise. Brockport tied the game with 33 seconds remaining in the period. The Eagles continued their scoring ways early in the second, taking a 3-1 lead. The Tigers were just getting hammered by the Eagles forechecking. Jay Murphy put RIT back in the game with two goals in under a minute. On both of them he put the puck in the upper right hand corner. Brockport then regained composure and scored four straight. Scott MacNair closed the gap late in the game with a powerplay goal. RIT lost 7-4 against a Brockport squad that they should have easily laughed out of the building. Their Saturday game against Hobart was canceled due to the cold, Hobart is an outdoor rink, and as of production has not yet been rescheduled.

WOMEN'S HOCKEY

RIT 6, COLBY 2

RIT jumped out to an early lead and never looked back in their first of two road games last weekend. Lisa Gentile scored less than three minutes into the game when she battled in front of the net to tip in a feed pass from Erin O'Neil. O'Neil picked up her own goal near the end of the first when she put home a pass from Lisa Gimlin. The Tigers skated off leading 2-0 at the end of one.

In the second, RIT again picked up an early goal. Shantel Gammie battled along the boards to get the puck into the slot where Gimlin was waiting to fire it in. Gimlin picked up her second goal of the second when her centering pass caromed off the skate of Suzy Balogh, who was tied up in front of the net. The goal counted and was one of the Tiger's two power play goals in the game. Gentile picked up her second of the game on a nice second effort, assisted on the play by Marie Signor.

Colby picked up goals in the second and third periods, but Jonnie

Jacot finished off the scoring when she worked the point on the power play and slapped a screen shot that caught the far post. Balogh and Melissa Priebe assisted on the play. The win bodes well for the Tigers who potentially might face Colby in their upcoming defense of the Bowdoin Tournament Cup.

RIT 0, UNH 8

In the second game of the road trip, the Tigers faced a much tougher opponent in University of New Hampshire. A team with a 14-3-1 record and one that had beaten Colby 17-0 earlier in the week. The strains of the long road trip seemed to take their toll early in the first period as RIT gave up three quick goals before coming alive and battling tough. RIT generated a number of scoring opportunities but were unable to convert and UNH held on to the shut-out, winning 8-0.

The Tigers square off this weekend against arch-rivals St. Lawrence University Saturday night at 8:30 p.m. and Sunday afternoon at 12:15 a.m. Admission is free. Swing by and cheer them on to victory.

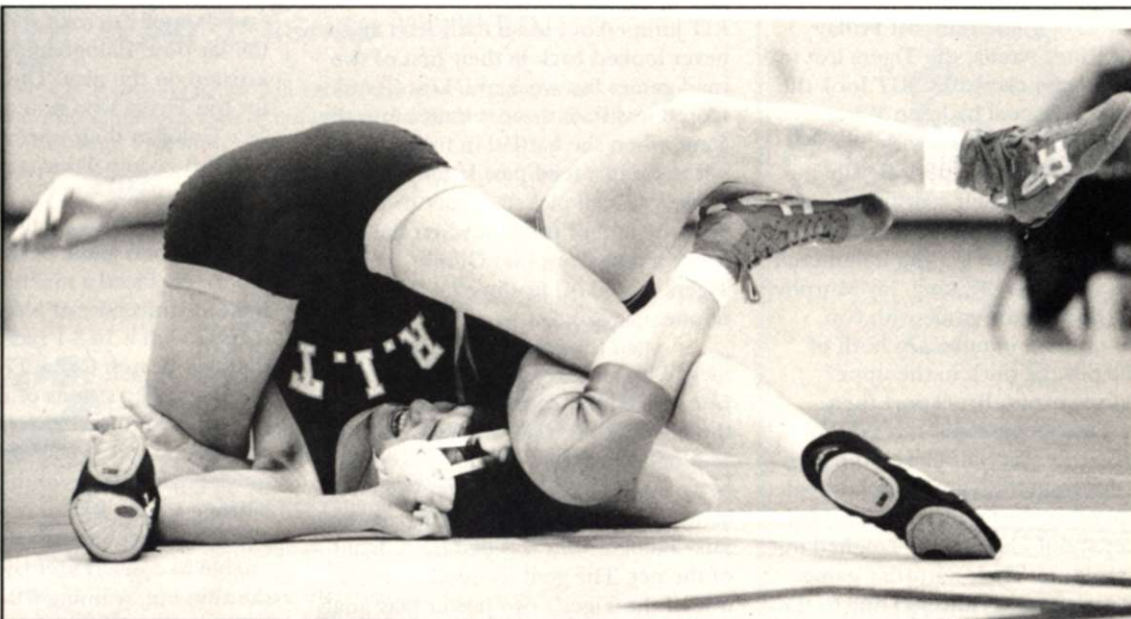

Number 30, Derrick Barnett shows great effort as the puck slides by.

Sports News

WOMEN'S TRACK 6th Place, UR Invitational

This past weekend saw the Track team finish sixth out of a nine team field. Amy Weber finished second in both the 45 and 200 meter dash. Kristina Schulze placed third in the high jump and fourth in the long jump. Sherrp Ann Smith placed fourth in the high jump, and Carlean Murray and Neva Nichols finished fourth and fifth in the shot put. The 4x400 meter relay team placed fourth.

WRESTLING

RIT 3, ST. LAWRENCE 42

The RIT wrestling team faced the Saints of St. Lawrence on Saturday in what proved to be a long day for the Tigers. RIT won only one of a possible ten matches, with the only win coming in the final match of the day, a 5-0 decision by heavyweight Chris Merkel. The Tigers lost 24 team points on six St. Lawrence pins and another six when they had to forfeit the match at 126 pounds. The Tigers record dropped to a dismal 0-5 on the season, being outscored 194-37 by their five opponents.

WOMEN'S SWIMMING

RIT 68 LEMOYNE 72

The lady Tigersharks traveled to LeMoyne last Tuesday for a dual meet with the teams from both LeMoyne and Utica. The contest against LeMoyne turned out to be a close one as RIT fell short by only four points when it was all over. Amira Gumby and Karen Strumlock paced the Tigersharks with two wins apiece, Gumby's in the 50 and 100 freestyle, and Strumlock's in the 500 and 1000 freestyle. Kathy Hugelier also won both diving events, the required portion and the optional, while teammate Amber McFate took second in both events. Jody Thomas won the 100 Individual medley to round out the meet for RIT.

RIT 118, UTICA 21

The ladies made up for the close match with LeMoyne by creaming Utica. RIT swimmers took all but one event and took second in all but three. Karen Strumlock and Jody Thomas each won three events and Amira Gumby took two. Other winners included Allison Gilday, Lauren O'Connell, and Carrie Marlin. Kathy Hugelier also continued to dive well, taking both the required and the optional diving competitions. The victory raised the Tigersharks record to 4-4 on the season.

RIT 69, UR 159

On Saturday the Tigersharks went across town to meet the University of Rochester in a head-to-head contest. Amira Gumby, who has grown accustomed to winning the 50 and 100 freestyle, was bested in the 50 free by UR's Myers and didn't compete in the 100 free. Instead she entered the 200 freestyle and won that event by over seven seconds. Lauren O'Connell captured the 50 breaststroke and RIT swept the 100 butterfly, with Kelly Lindsay taking first place. Kathy Hugelier mastered the boards again, winning both the three-meter and one-meter events in record form. Kathy set UR pool and RIT school records for most points in both events, and qualified those scores for the second time this season for the NCAA championships. Despite her performance, the Tigersharks lost the meet and fell to 4-5 on the year.

MEN'S SWIMMING

RIT 117, UR 144

The Tigersharks traveled to cross-town rival University of Rochester on Saturday looking to even their season record at two. The Yellow jackets had other plans, however, and beat the Tigersharks, despite winning only six of the possible fourteen events. Nick Jensen, Andy Abbott, and Kyril Faenov each won two events and Trevor Kosa and Tony Metzger each added another to keep RIT close. But UR's six wins, including a sweep of both diving events and numerous second and third place finishes enabled them to out-point the Tigersharks for the victory. With the loss, RIT's record dropped to 1-3.

Women's Basketball

RIT 33, HARTWICK 67

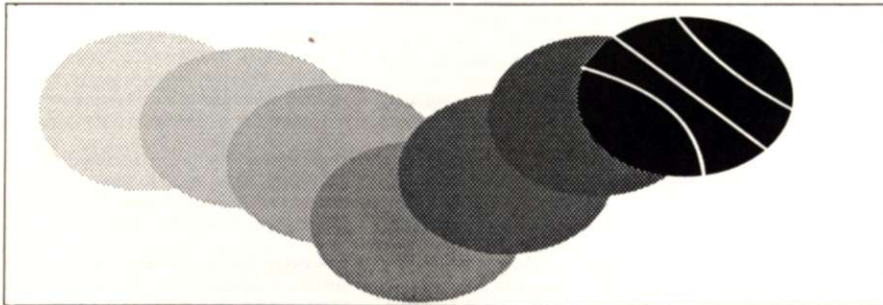

The Lady Tigers went on the road this week to face two tough EAA basketball teams. In their first bout they were upended by a wide margin unable to control the sharp-shooting of the Hartwick Warriors. Melissa Trambley lead RIT with 8 points.

RIT 61, RPI 60

The following day saw the RIT ladies come out with a different roar as they went on to outdo the Rensselaer Engineers by one. Joan Marie Nunziato sank the jumper with ten seconds to go to give the Tigers a one-point lead. Trambley played a tenacious game on defense as she stole the ball as well as their chance for victory from the RPIer's with six seconds to go on the clock.

Senior Jen Zaepfel had the game-high with an impressive 21 points and 9 boards. Freshman Maggie Gulley followed with 10 points and 6 rebounds. RIT resumes home action tonight 2/12 versus Clarkson at 6 PM and St. Lawrence tomorrow at 2 PM. So come on out and support our Lady Tigers!

Men's Basketball

RIT 54, HARTWICK 57

This past Friday, the RIT men's basketball team suffered a disappointing loss versus Hartwick to end Coach Bob McVean's longest winning streak at 10. Leaving them at a tie with Ithaca for first in the EAA standings.

RIT trailed the Warriors the majority of the game, unable to stop the powerful play of their big men underneath the basket. The Tigers lead at one point by 4, but could not hold on as they lost by three in this EAA bout. In their efforts, high-scorer went to Alberto Montanez with 21 points.

RIT 86, RPI 83

Coming into the second day, the Tigers play was enigmatic as they were unfamiliar with Rensselaers dome-like setting. They fell behind by as much as 12 points. Following a time-out by RIT with about 10 minutes to go, the Tigers went on a rampage as Brian Wachter and Des Allen hit back-to-back three pointers to tie the game at 62. From that point on it was RIT all the way, as they stayed on top to improve their record to 15-4. Montanez lead the way with 22 points and 8 rebounds, Jeff Molisani and Allen both jammed out 17, and Charlie Bartlett pitched in for 15 key points. Ranked seventh, the Tigers play in their final home matches on tonight at 8 PM versus Clarkson, and Saturday at 4 PM versus St. Lawrence. Come out and show your support! Good Luck Tigers!!

Atheletes Of The Week

Jeff Molisani, a senior guard on the basketball team, has been named Rochester Institute of Technology Male Athlete of the Week for the week ending Feb. 8, 1993.

Molisani led the squad to a 2-1 week with wins over Rochester and Rensselaer and a loss to Hartwick. Versus Rochester, he had 15 points, five rebounds and three assists; against Hartwick, he had eight assists; and vs. Rensselaer, he had 17 points and five assists.

"Jeff had another solid week," points out Coach Bob McVean. "In our first win at Rochester's Palestra in 13 or so years, Jeff took over in the last three or four minutes and was very instrumental. Likewise, in our weekend games he held everything together and had an outstanding weekend." McVean comments.

Kathy Hugelier, a junior diver on the women's swim team, has been named Rochester Institute of Technology Female Athlete of the Week for the week ending Feb. 8, 1993.

Hugelier broke two school records at the University of Rochester on Saturday while capturing both the one-meter and three-meter diving events. She scored 261.90 on the one-meter and 256.50 on the three-meter. She also broke the one-meter pool record at the Speegle-Wilbraham Aquatic Center. Hugelier has now attained both NCAA qualifying scores needed to go to nationals in March.

"Kathy looked good again this weekend," Coach Kathy Robords comments. "She's very focused and confident, and she should do well in the state meet."

Hugelier chose RIT because of its strong academic and deaf programs. She is looking forward to the NCAAs in Georgia, and would like to compete in the Deaf Olympics.

Evidence unearthed during the "Iran-gate" hearings not only indicate that Ronald Reagan once lusted after Darla of "Little Rascals" fame, but also that he never did think much of his future vice president.

Oh Darla, I have loved you ever since the first day of school. It's hard to do my math problems because I keep wanting to think about you. I hope you will be my Valentine because I would be very nice and take you to the zoo where we can see the animals. I drew you a picture but it got rained on so I can't give it to you now. So maybe will you be mine? Just for today and maybe Saturday, if you want. You're very pretty. Please be mine!
Ronric
P.S. George likes you too, but don't be his valentine! He's a doek.
