Drama Club Sells Book

While the National Theatre of the Deaf (NTD) is on the RIT campus Oct. 5, 6, and 7, the NTID Drama Club will be selling copies of "Signs of Silence," a newly written book about Bernard Bragg, NTD's lead actor and director.

The book, written by Helen Powers, is due to be published Oct. 30, but by special arrangement with the publisher, 200 copies are being made available to the Drama Club in advance.

The book will be on sale for $6.95 in the College-Alumni Union lobby during all three performances, and from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Oct. 5 and 6. A portion of the profits will go to the Drama Club.

Both Mrs. Powers and Bernard Bragg will be available to autograph books at a reception following the performance on Friday evening in the College-Alumni Union lounge.

The National Theatre of the Deaf is opening its eleventh nationwide tour at RIT.

Alumni Relations Reorganized

A reorganization of Alumni Relations will enable Alumni Affairs to be more responsive to the Institute family, the Rochester community and alumni.

Under the Communications Department in the Division of Public Affairs, the activities of Alumni Relations have been divided into two new working groups, Program Services and Alumni Programs.

As part of the change, the staffs of Program Services and Alumni Programs are now located on the fourth floor of the Administration building with Public Affairs, Development, Community Relations and Communications Services.

Dick Limpert, who had been director of Alumni Relations, is now manager of Program Services and is responsible for managing major events and special projects for alumni and other community and national groups. He also is responsible for planning, records and other administrative services to support Public Affairs.

In making the announcement, Gene DePrez, director of Communications, said the reorganization is enabling alumni activities "to be tied more closely to RIT Public Affairs programs."

George (Chris) Belle-Isle has been promoted to director of Alumni Programs and is responsible for coordinating direct services, programs and communications with alumni, working closely with the Executive Council of the Alumni Association.

Union Desk Keeps Track Of All Campus Events

If you are hosting a conference, meeting or special course on campus, don't keep it a secret.

The College-Alumni Union desk (Ext. 2307) is responsible for keeping track of all events on campus. By informing the desk in advance of your event, you can keep visitors and participants from getting lost and missing your program.

Serve Dining Room Now Open At 11 a.m.

Is your schedule around lunch time getting more hectic? Food Service is responding to that basic need.

The Serve Dining Room now is opening its doors on the mezzanine level of the College-Alumni Union at 11 a.m. Monday through Friday.

With an improved menu and quicker service, the staff feels it can help keep you on schedule.

A buffet is available each Wednesday. If you have a special dish, tell the staff. It may be on the next week's menu.

For reservations telephone Ext. 2866.

There is a happy hour every Wednesday, Thursday and Friday in the Serve Dining Room from 4:30 to 6:30 p.m.

Why not be happy?

Family Fun Break Set

The activities committee of the Evening Student Association will hold its second annual Family Fun Break on Saturday, Oct. 7, from 1 to 5 p.m. at Seneca Park. Admission is free to all RIT evening students and their families, and evening faculty and administration.

Bus Schedule Changed

The schedule of Regional Transit Service buses between RIT's Henrietta campus and the Metropolitan Center has been changed.

Regional Transit buses are leaving the Henrietta campus administration circle at 9:05 a.m. and 1:05 p.m. Return trips from the Metropolitan Center are made at 12:30 and 4:05 p.m. The trip is approximately 30 minutes.

The service is intended primarily for certain students in the College of Fine and Applied Arts and the School of Applied Science who have scheduled classes at the Metropolitan Center. Other students are welcome to use the service on a space-available basis, according to Todd H. Bullard, provost and vice president for academic affairs.

Students with classes scheduled at the Metropolitan Center will be issued bus passes. Other students will pay standard fare.

He Crusades To Change Library Image

Not all librarians are little old ladies in tennis shoes.

At least that's the opinion of Gary MacMillan, and, as director of RIT's Wallace Memorial Library, he should know.

MacMillan has begun a crusade to change the image and use of the library on campus. His latest effort came on September 25 when he held a "Library Liberation Day." The event was staged to give both faculty and students a view of the materials the library has to offer.

For those who made the complete trip through the library, free beer and pretzels were offered.

MacMillan scoffs at those who claim the only reason anyone came was because of the free beer. He's quick to point to the fact that 4700 people passed through the turnstiles, not a bad turnout for a $400 investment. "I would have hated to hold the day dry," he says.

The idea for the Library Liberation Day came from student employees who caught MacMillan's fervor that something had to be done to change the attitude of faculty and students.

"People saw that we have some pretty weird, marvelous people on our staff," he says.

MacMillan doesn't hide the fact that overall support from faculty in the past has not been too great.

"Part of the problem is that many instructors don't require their students to use the library," he points out. "Some automatically send their students to the University of Rochester library. They probably have no idea what we do have."

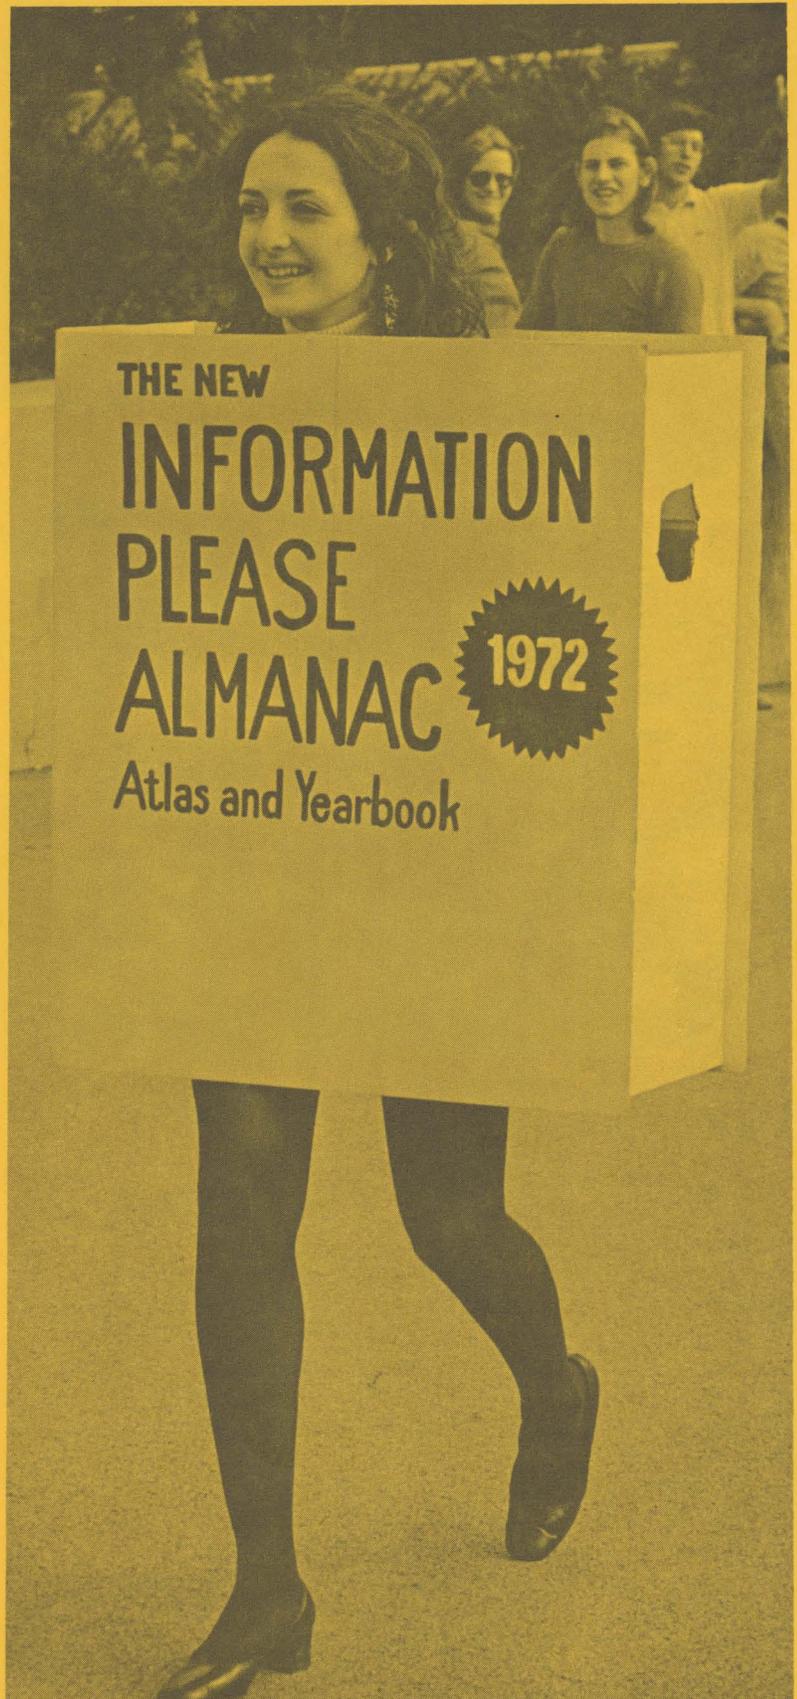

MacMillan realizes the library doesn't have many of the books it should have. "We're not strong in any area."

But then he points out that financial support to the library hasn't increased while book prices have gone up as much as 30 percent.

Then new academic programs were started without consideration of library support. MacMillan says it takes $20,000 to give library support to a new curriculum. To provide even minor support he is "forced to take monies allocated for books for other programs.

"There wasn't quite the need for a complete library when RIT was located on the downtown campus, especially with the public library right around the corner."

The Wallace Memorial Library now appears to be in a transition period under the director of two years. The 40 professional staff members are involved in changing over to the Library of Congress System, improving circulation procedures and tightening security.

Security, or rather a lack of it, was a problem in the past. MacMillan says that many art and photo books have only one printing. If stolen, they become costly to replace. The library has cracked down, but not solved totally the security problem.

"We're still trying to get the ship to run smoothly," MacMillan states. "A work-study grant is helping us make improvements and offer better service."

Even MacMillan admits it's difficult to predict what the future holds for the library. Print is getting so costly that microfilm and expanded use of visual equipment may be one answer.

His latest crusade is to obtain funds to save the RIT archives, which are rapidly disintegrating. He insists that microfilm is the only answer and action is needed now.

And if you happen to spot someone stealing a highly graphic library poster, don't get excited. MacMillan wants it that way. He prints extras hoping they will be "lifted" and put on some dormitory wall where they constantly will remind the "thief" and others of the value of the Wallace Memorial Library.

Grant Deadlines Approach

Application deadlines for grants for several programs are coming up within the next two weeks, according to Dan Cashman of the Grant Administration office.

Further information and application forms for those programs are available in the Grant Administration office from Dan Cashman, Ext. 2388.

SCHOLARSHIP HONORS PROFESSOR BAGBY

Contributions are now being received for the Robert C. Bagby Memorial Scholarship Fund, in memory of the RIT professor emeritus, who died last month at the Santa Fe Hospital in Santa Fe, N.M.

Professor Bagby was a full-time faculty member in RIT's School of Photographic Arts and Sciences from 1953 to 1967. He continued to teach on a part-time basis at RIT until June of this year. He resided at 301 Perkins Road, Henrietta.

At RIT, professor Bagby was highly respected by his students and peers alike.

"He was totally immersed in photography, and gave it all his time," said professor David Engdahl, assistant director of the School of Photographic Arts and Sciences in RIT's College of Graphic Arts and Photography.

The scholarship fund in his honor will be used to aid students enrolled in RIT's School of Photographic Arts and Sciences. Those wishing to contribute to the fund should make their checks payable to: Robert C. Bagby Memorial Scholarship Fund, and mail the contributions to: Mrs. Marion Klem, Program Services, Rochester Institute of Technology, One Lomb Memorial Drive, Rochester, N.Y. 14607.

Kissinger Aide Here

Stating that the news media has never given the American people a comprehensive background on the Vietnamese society or culture, Dolf Droge, White House assistant to Dr. Henry Kissinger, addressed capacity audiences at RIT this week, in lectures sponsored by the College of General Studies and the College-Union Board.

Droge, who is a member of the National Security Council, spoke on "25 Years of Vietnam," and claimed that the struggle between the North and South Vietnamese people is a far cry from a Civil War, since the history and interests of the two peoples involved has not been similar or parallel.

Swim Classes Open

Registration for swimming lessons for children of faculty, staff and students will be from 10 a.m. to noon Saturday, Oct. 7, at the Edith Woodward Memorial pool.

Children must be at least two years old. They are to bring suits and towels. Hours for their instruction will be assigned at registration.

Classes for adults also are being offered this year. Registration is at the same time.
