

Institute Public Speaking Contest Finalists

Bruce A. Austin baagll@rit.edu

2 November 2004

The final round for the Institute Public Speaking Contest was held Friday, 29 October from 10:30-12 noon in the Skalny room. In its 16th year, the contest invites students from across the Institute to deliver a variety of speeches on different topics. In accordance with the 175th anniversary events, students delivered informative speeches on topics dealing with technology in the 21st century.

The first place finalist was Jonathan Bove, a fourth-year Professional & Technical Communication major (COLA); second place went to Jasmine Jones, a fourth-year Art and Computer Design major (NTID); third place went to Michael Ciuffetelli, a fourth-year Criminal Justice major (COLA).

Congratulations to all who participated.

Grant Cos, Ph.D.
Department of Communication
Rochester Institute of Technology