

Online Digital Art Journal Seeks Submissions

Bruce A. Austin baagll@rit.edu

12 May 2004

A new online digital art journal seeks submissions from undergraduate and graduate students. Katie Chang, art director for the recently launched online digital art journal, gnovisual, states that the journal strives to be an innovative and thought-provoking forum where digital art is used to explore and challenge various themes of technology.

As part of Georgetown's Communication, Culture and Technology (<http://cct.georgetown.edu>) online journal, gnovisual is an online peer-reviewed journal, that hopes to help bridge the gap between artistic expression and technology.

Here is a link to the submission guidelines for digital art:
<http://gnovis.georgetown.edu/submit/art.cfm>