

Writer-Editor Job for DOC Students

Bruce A. Austin baagll@rit.edu

16 January 2006

Department of Communication students – undergrads and grads – are invited to apply for a position as a writer-editor with RIT's Office of Cooperative Education. The successful candidate will contribute features and articles to a newsletter, email distributions, the web site and will assist in developing a publicity campaign and marketing materials for major events. This paid ($8-10/hour), 15-20 hour a week job can count toward a Co-op requirement and should be especially attractive to APR majors and those DOC students eager to gain professional experience.

For more information contact Bruce Austin or Chris VanHemel.