Over the summer, the Department of Communication was notified that it is the winner of the National Communication Association's (NCA) prestigious "Rex Mix Program of Excellence Award."

In announcing the Award, NCA, the discipline's largest professional organization, cited RIT's Department of Communication for "using superior instruction, pioneering research, and practical application evaluated through clear assessment methodology."

Dr. David Neumann, DOC Professor, will accept the Award on behalf of the Department at the NCA Conference in Chicago, IL in mid-November.

An e-newsletter published occasionally by the Department of Communication and distributed to students and their family, alumni, faculty and others who have expressed an interest in communication.
