24 September 2007

IBM will be at RIT's Career Fair this week and is extremely interested in hiring technical writers for their Lotus Team in Software Group.

IBM's Chris Reckling will be looking for full-time and Co-op candidates at the career fair to be interviewed on Wednesday the 27th. Chris Reckling is from the Lotus team – Lotus Software creates collaborative software that helps collaborate more effectively, including Lotus Notes (email, calendar and applications), Sametime (IM and web conferencing), Connections (social networking), Quickr (file sharing and collaboration), and Symphony (office tools).

An e-newsletter published occasionally by the Department of Communication and distributed to students and their family, alumni, faculty and others who have expressed an interest in communication.
