1,169 in Graduation Exercises To Hear Dr. Judd Tomorrow

A total of 1,169 students will be cited for degrees at this year's convocation to be held in the Rochester War Memorial, June 6, at 10:30 a.m. This total includes 711 A.A.S., 336 B.S., 53 B.F.A., and 19 M.F.A. degrees.

Fifty degrees will be given to Evening College students, including for the first time, eight B.S. degrees. This year's graduating class is the largest in Institute history.

The program will commence with an organ prelude by Clarence Warrington, including selections by Walther, Bach, Tomlinson, Marcelle, Depre, Handel, and Selby.

The processional will include Rigaudon, by Campra, Marche en Rondeau, by Charpentier, and the traditional Pomp and Circumstance by Elgar. The Rev. Dr. Murray A. Cayley, Institute chaplain, will offer the invocation and closing benediction.

Dr. Walter H. Judd will give the convocation address. Dr. Judd served ten terms, from 1943 to 1962, as a member of Congress from Minneapolis, Minn., and is a nationally recognized authority on United States foreign policy. At the Republican National Convention in 1960, Dr. Judd was the keynote speaker.

He was a delegate to the General Assembly of the United Nations in 1957 and to the World Health Organization Assembly in 1950 and 1958. Judd helped organize the Council of Europe and was a delegate to the first Consultative Assembly at Strasbourg in 1951.

Having lived for 10 years in China as a medical missionary, Dr. Judd is one of the relatively few Americans who can speak with personal knowledge of the sinister significance of happenings in Asia. When he talks about Communism it is from his personal experience of having worked in areas under its control as far back as 1930.

Author of much congressional legislation, a nationally recognized speaker of the first rank, and member of numerous organizations and associations, he has been honored by more than 20 American universities and colleges.

He is the recipient of the American Medical Association Distinguished Service Award of 1961, the Care-Medico Humanitarian Award, 1962, and the U.S. Chamber of Commerce Great Living American Award, 1963.

Dr. Mark Ellingson, President of RIT, will present the citation for degrees to the graduates.

The recessional will follow. Festival Recess, by Zipoli, and Recessional in D Major, by William, will be the selections.

A luncheon and reception will be held at 12:15 in the Ritter-Clark Memorial Gymnasium, followed by open exhibits in the School of Art and Design, School of Photography, School of American Craftsmen, and the Library from 1:15 to 4:30 p.m.

Canoe Race, Dancing Highlight 'N-C Day'

Jim Olin and Mary Ann Simmon started the New Campus Day off with a flash by winning the canoe race in 42 minutes. Theta Xi fraternity took second and third, followed by Alpha Xi Delta sorority, fourth, and Sigma Pi fraternity, fifth.

All of the entries in the race assembled at the boat dock at noon to be assigned canoes and to be given final instructions and safety tips.

Denis Kitchen started the race at 1:30 so that the canoe race would coincide with the caravan of cars driven beside the Genesee River. By the time the cars pulled alongside, the canoes were already separated and the top five finishers were in the lead. The APO canoe was already out of sight of the other leaders. The second place canoe followed Jim Olin in by four minutes, and two minutes later the third, fourth, and fifth place canoes came in, with barely half a canoe length separating them. A bus took the participants to the new campus.

A cold picnic lunch of hot dogs, hamburgers, baked beans and potato salad was served by the RIT cafeteria staff. Rides given early in the afternoon on a war surplus ammunition carrier were replaced by hay rides because the carrier threw a tread.

The championship intramural softball game was held between Theta Xi and the Electrical Dept. The Electrical team won behind the pitching of Tom Lunn.

After the softball game, a square dancing group formed and spectators were invited to join. The lively session of instruction and dancing ended at 9 p.m., when the bus returned to transport the remaining students back to the concrete campus.

Production Staff Selected; Editor Plans Fall Meeting

Principal positions on the 1964-65 staff of the RIT Reporter were recently filled with the appointment of Steven I. Banish as Technical Director for the coming year.

Named as production supervisors were David Conklin, Wayne Gilgore, Wayne Johnson, and Steven Rimer, all of the School of Printing.

Filling other spots as associates or assistants will be Tom Barker, Peter Bird, Michael Goetz, Helen Howard, David Jones, Jim Kohler, Jorge Rivas, Joe Staszek, and Mal Warob.

It is planned to recruit additional staff members next fall to fill the few remaining vacancies.

Editor-in-chief Tony Puskarz hopes to arrange a day-long full staff meeting just prior to upper-class registration in September.

$1 Million Gift From Gannett To New Campus

A grant of $1 million to the New Campus Fund has been received from the Gannett Co.

Announcement of the grant came from Paul Miller, Foundation President and publisher of the Gannett Newspapers, in a message read by Lynn N. Bitner at a gathering of more than 800 campaign workers at the new campus site on May 27. Mr. Bitner is vice president and general manager of the Gannett organization.

Mr. Miller's statement noted that Frank E. Gannett was a long time friend and patron of the Institute. It was his broad understanding that led to the establishment of the School of Printing in 1937. Mr. Gannett served as a member of the Board of Trustees of RIT from September 1938 until his death in September 1957. In 1952 he received the Institute's Founder's Award.

The grant is the first corporate gift received by the New Campus Fund campaign. It had been planned for many years.

The Gannett Co., publishes the Times-Union and the Democrat and Chronicle. They also sponsor the annual Collegiate Newspaper Conference at RIT.

Construction at the new campus is scheduled to begin this summer. Completion is expected by 1967.

Ten Photo Students Honored by SMPTE In Competition

Ten senior students in RIT's photo science program were honored recently when they presented award winning papers at a meeting of the Rochester Section of the Society of Motion Picture and Television Engineers in the Eastman Building.

The papers were selected by a panel of judges: Dr. James Eyer of the University of Rochester, Allan Koerner of Eastman Kodak Co., and RIT professors Dr. Burt Carroll, William Shoemaker, and Hollis Todd. All papers were senior research projects by Institute students working toward their B. S. degree in Photographic Science.

The students were presented awards sponsored jointly by the Rochester Section of SMPTE, the student SMPTE Chapter at RIT, and Delta Lambda Epsilon, photographic fraternity.

Selected by the judges as the outstanding paper in the competition was a three student effort titled: "A Proposed Colored Radiographic System for Radiodontics." The authors were Raymond A. Eynard of Williston Park, N.Y., James A. Langone of Wilbraham, Mass., and J. Scott Wilson of Youngstown, Ohio.

EDITORIALS EDITORIALS EDITORIALS

A Living Memorial

The first corporate contribution to the new campus was made a week ago, in the form of $1 million. Such a gift from anyone would be outstanding news, but in the case of the Gannett Co., and the Frank E. Gannett Newspaper Foundation, the gift and its motivation go much deeper.

Frank E. Gannett was the founder of the Gannett organization, and as such was vitally interested in the printing industry, and more important, in the education he always felt was needed there. It was through this deep interest and forethought that the School of Printing of RIT was founded in 1937. Mr. Gannett was among the first to recognize the educational needs of the graphic arts industry, and he always worked toward meeting this need. As a member of the Board of Trustees at RIT from 1938 to his death in 1957, Mr. Gannett was active in setting up research programs and continual pioneering in the field of graphic arts.

Up to the present day, and culminating with this grant, the Gannett organization has continued to play an active part in the development of RIT, and has always stood ready to assist it in its needs. As college newspaper editors, we have seen their ready assistance in publicizing the Institute in everything from canoe races to full page spreads on the New Campus. We have deeply appreciated their sponsoring our annual collegiate newspaper conference.

All of these things, coupled with the gift they have bestowed upon us stand as a tribute to Frank Gannett, his ideals and his contribution of much more than money to RIT.

Our Living Dolls

There is a current fad in the world of children of having dolls whose accessories and wardrobes cost as much as $300. The most popular of these, as we ascertain from television, is the Barbie doll with her friend, Bobbie.

The Reporter has its own set of dolls, which, thank heavens, it didn't cost us a cent to equip or maintain. They are dolls in the true sense of the word in that you never hear them complain, even though they don't receive much public display or credit.

What do our dolls do? They don't cry, they don't sleep, but are rather unusual in that, among other things, they supervise the operation of RIT's Linotype equipment. To these dolls without whose enthusiasm, interest, and aid this paper would never have been possible, we give our sincere thanks — Barbie and Bobbie Tompkins.

The Living End

This final edition of the year becomes my final edition for life. One becomes very attached to an object after four years of blood, sweat, and tears, and this is very true of my relationship with the Reporter.

I have received much frustration, much criticism, but more important, a great deal of satisfaction. I could never hope to describe my feelings when watching the student body devour the latest copy of my, and a great number of people's, efforts. This makes up for everything.

To the Institute, Hector Sutherland, advisor, to Bill Barley, past editor, and Tony Puskarz, former co-editor and new editor-in-chief, and to all those who have helped make this experience meaningful, I give my thanks.

Gary A. Ludwick

Editorial material for this issue of the Reporter was prepared on Linofilm with headlines in the Spartan series and body matter in 8 and 10 point Primer.

Letters . . . Letters . . . Letters . . .

Dear Editor:

There should be no such thing in the United States as second-class citizenship. Likewise, public functions of both the States and the Federal Government must be open to all citizens regardless of race, color or religion. It is surprising, dismaying and even shocking that there should be any need to legislate such things.

In all this controversy about civil rights, certain essential fundamentals of government shine clearly if we will but think carefully. And now is the time for us to think carefully even if some parts of the nation appear to let their emotions run away with them on this subject. In other lands we have seen what happens when the leadership has chosen to follow the path that the end justifies the means.

We cannot ignore the wisdom of our Constitution or for that matter the plain and simple truth that even the Federal Government is one of limited power.

What does this mean in respect to the subject matter included in the proposals that have been called the civil rights bill?

It means that we must adhere to the Constitution and this in turn means that we may impose requirements of this type in things federal or upon activities in the several states that are truly state action, and no more.

It means finally that there is no power in the Congress to legislate as proposed in the so-called civil rights bill in regard to private lives, private business, and individual activity within and among the several states having nothing to do with interstate commerce and not constituting state action.

And it is the sheerest hypocrisy to contend that by so defining such private conduct that it becomes constitutionally amenable to Federal law when the power to enact that law was never given to the Federal Government in the Constitution.

A COMMENCEMENT PRAYER

Thou Master Teacher
Of the Good Life,
We pause to praise Thee
And to thank Thee
And to commit unto Thee
The powers with which
Thou didst endow us.
In this our fellowship
Of learning
We have sought skill,
Now we would be useful.
We have sought wisdom
And in our better moments
We have found understanding
And responsibility
Instead of mere cleverness
Or sophistication.
Now we pray for the
Blessing of Thy Holier Spirit
Of unselfishness
So that
Having run a good race
And having finished the course
We may not flunk the future.
So may there be laid up for us
Not just a diploma
But a sense of holy worth
Befitting Thy sons.

Amen.

Chaplain M.A.C.

Therefore, this proposed legislation is fatally unconstitutional in several important respects. It is an unconstitutional extension of federal power over the private rights of individual American citizens to live their private lives or conduct their private business as they please - short of criminal offense - and over the powers and rights reserved to the states and to the peoples thereof, to regulate the pattern of living within state borders each unto each as the legislatures of each determine.

I give this opinion as a graduate of the Harvard Law School, Attorney General of one of the states for nearly a decade, and twice chairman of the American Bar Association's Standing Committee on Jurisprudence and Law Reform for the country.

I give it not to make trouble, not to stir controversy further but only to voice my deep conviction that passage of unconstitutional legislation on the basis that the end justifies the means is a perversion of the function of the members of the Congress. It is way past time when some plain English was spoken so that we may get hold of ourselves and not go off the deep end with this legislation.

Where is the unconstitutionality in this bill? In title II, called "Public Accommodation," and title VII, called "Equal Employment Opportunity," to say nothing of the other provisions of an act that is so long and so cumbersome that very few individuals in the entire country have ever even read it all the way through.

The fatal defect of the public accommodations section is that the bill attempts by definition to declare that inns, motels, hotels, or lodging houses, or restaurants, or other facilities selling food, or motion picture houses, theaters, arenas and the like are interstate commerce upon a formula that has never been held to constitute interstate commerce by any court, and that defies commonsense and good judgment as to what constitutes interstate commerce even to laymen. What is here sought to be regulated is private business, not federally run establishments nor even state-owned or operated. They are privately owned; maybe even by you or me or our next-door neighbor, be he or she white or non-white. And if they are privately owned and operated, and if they are not in interstate commerce, there is no power anywhere in the United States Constitution to regulate their choice of customers.

It is wrong to subscribe to this legislative legerdemain out of sympathy for some who may have been unreasonably turned away from certain facilities when by doing so we destroy the private right each of us has under the Constitution to run his or her business affairs as we see fit, short of committing a crime in the process. It would have been perfectly possible to confine the scope and sweep of the public accommodations section of this bill to genuine interstate commerce but this has not been done.

If enacted, we would pay an awful price for it in loss of constitutional protection for each citizen of the United States, because if the Federal Government can legislate itself into private business by drafting definitions of human rights for the express purpose of modifying the Constitution without a legitimate process of constitutional amendment, virtually anything can be next.

I repeat that I believe this legislation is patently unconstitutional.

Louis C. Wyman
Congressman, New Hampshire

Dear Editor:

It is easy to understand why the selection of John Ferrante as Athlete of the Year has caused so much concern. Cross country is not a spectator sport. Members of the team and I can vouch for that. Cross country is not an exciting sport as it is with basketball, wrestling, soccer and so many more. The new track team received very little support in its first year of competition.

Because of this, I would think that it is rather unkind for anyone to judge the merits of anyone participating on a cross country team. If anyone is upset at his selection, I would suggest that he or she contact the members of the varsity or freshman teams, or some of the few staff members of the Institute and ask them of the performances that Mr. Ferrante displayed in this non-glorious sport.

Mr. Stephen Walls and Mr. William Toporcer were always on hand at our home meets. If you are still not satisfied, then I would suggest that you attend our home meets this fall, for we feel that among the members of the varsity team we will have another candidate for Athlete of the Year, and we would be pleased if you would make the selection.

I.F.C. Greek Talk

by Hal O'Rourke

In the past year we have seen many changes take place here at RIT, both in school policy and in the academic programs. In order to keep pace with this progress, IFC and the fraternities on campus will also be changing their policies next year.

One of the things you can expect to see when you return in September is a new pledging system instituted by all fraternities.

Early in the Fall quarter a "greek week" will be held to familiarize the freshmen with the greek system and help them decide whether to "go greek." Before the beginning of the school year, IFC will hold a greek workshop for any greeks who care to attend. It is planned to have representatives speak on greek systems at other schools in the hope of improving fraternities at RIT.

With the close of the school year we would like to wish everyone who has been associated with IFC through their respective greek organizations, the best of luck in their chosen fields. Without the graduating brothers, the greek system could not have achieved the place it holds at RIT today.

We also extend our best wishes to those graduates who have chosen to stay independent through their careers at the Institute, and we hope we have contributed something to their college life.

Students returning in the fall will look forward to the most successful greek year in the history of the Institute.

A Pause As We Enter Life

Life, I long to touch you.
What if I dip my hand to you?
You will bathe my trailing fingers.
Even they, so small, sense your power. Even they, so small, yearn for your strength.

Whether I am here or not does not concern you. But see! I have disturbed your surface! Now who is strong? My dabbling fingers have disturbed your surface . . . only your surface. You are deep and there is more.

So what if I plunge my arm into you? Have I not found more? Ah!
Have I not? See as I jump into you what splashes I make. There, I am strong, so strong.

And I can swim through you, under you. Life, I have found you.

And yet, wandering here, as I sense the nuances of your strength, all the while your surface has stilled.
Do you not realize that I am here?
!! I who disturbed your surface! I who pierced your surface! I who have seen your secrets.

How can you forget the white splash I made? Can I not conquer you? Am I not strong? Yes! I am! I can!
And I do it again! See! I . . . again
you have calmed.

You have not changed. You will not change.

Only I have changed. I have changed and you have not.

Now who is strong! Only I have changed. Only I am changing. Only
I keep changing.

Life, I have found you.

Constitution Changes Approved by Council

At the May 14 meeting of the Executive Council of the RIT Alumni Association, a number of important changes were made in the council constitution and by-laws. The amendments were recommended by the Constitution Committee after deliberating a proposal drafted by Lawrence Chapman (Pr '48) and signed by ten council members.

Prior to the May meeting, the Executive Council held a general business meeting once a month with no meetings during July and August. In Chapman's proposal, he suggested limiting the number of general business meetings to one per calendar quarter. "Fewer general business meetings would allow for a strengthening of our committee structure," Chapman continued, "and give committee chairman ample time to plan their meetings and activities."

To further increase the effectiveness of the committee structure the following amendment was added to the constitution: "A minimum of four (4) meetings per committee will be held in addition to the afore stated business meetings at a time and place pre-arranged by the chairman of each committee. Written reports of committee meetings will be submitted to the president and/or either vice president prior to the next general business meeting.

The council voted to add an additional office, second vice president, to the Administrative Committee. The duties of this office include the "responsibility for the functioning of the special committees." The first vice president will assume the duties of the president in his absence. He will also be responsible for the functioning of the standing committees.

The by-laws were changed to conform with the constitution and an article was added giving the president the authority to call additional meetings at any time to deal with a specific agenda.

Mrs. Ferris was formerly state district president of the organization and has served actively on over 20 committees of the group. She is currently Jayncee Woman of the Year and is a representative to the Womens Human Relations Council.

Mr. and Mrs. Ferris reside at 312 Rosewood Terrace in Rochester. Mr. Ferris is a sales executive at Stecher-Traung Lithographing Co.

Consider how much cold water has been poured on the world's ideals through the spout of these words: "You can't change human nature."

New Slate of Officers Elected by Faculty Council

A new slate of officers of the Faculty Council were elected to posts for the coming academic year at a meeting of the council on May 21. They were inducted June 1.

Empire Alumni Club Holds Gathering; Plans for Picnic

A cocktail party was held by members of the Empire Club of the RIT Alumni Association on May 7 at Longchamps Restaurant for alumni in the metropolitan New York City area.

According to Sheldon Schector (Pr '60), chairman of the group, approximately 60 alumni from the area, and their guests, were in attendance.

Supplementing the mailed invitations was a telephone informational program under the direction of Donald Volk (Pr '58). Over 250 telephone calls were made to alumni in New York City, Long Island, and northeastern New Jersey.

The next event of the group will be the second annual Family Picnic on June 6 from 10 a.m., to 6 p.m., at Hempstead Town Park, Point Lookout, Long Island. There will be no cost for the picnic other than the parking fee.

Last year, the picnic drew over 150 alumni and guests, not including children. The committee reminds alumni that this is a good opportunity to renew old acquaintances and make new ones with alumni residing in their own area.

Van Slyke noted, "We are hopeful of arranging to have a number of well-known personalities at the various weekend functions and to increase the activities available for classes to unite even though it may not be their reunion year. We expect to provide a liberal program for the classes of 1939 and 1954. With a good response the reunion program may be expanded in future years to include the 5, 15, and 30 year anniversary classes."

The weekend is a joint effort on the part of the Student Association and the Alumni Association, with a committee under the auspices of each organization. The Alumni Relations Office and Student Personnel Services act in an advisory capacity and arrange for many of the mechanical details of the weekend.

And Now We Leave...

The show is over . . . and as the curtain descends amidst the wild applause of the departing senior class, there are a few who steal a moment of silence. A silence filled with thoughts of past and future. What shall lie ahead? What preparation has been made to meet what lies in store? Five seniors candidly reveal their thoughts before they bid their college days good bye....

Angel Pilato

I've enjoyed my four years at RIT . . . a rewarding experience and a period of growth. We've complained and criticized while we were here, a kind of family quarrel, as we attempted to promote and improve. On graduating though, we begin to realize how grateful we are to RIT for the education, the memories, the friends, and the unforgettable good times. These things we carry with us are priceless. How much RIT has done for us . . . yet how little it asks in return - only that we carry her name proudly, doing what we can to brighten the image of our school.

Brendan C. Fahy

Students at RIT are younger than they were five years ago, but more intelligent. They are less mature socially, and they are more materialistic . . . too concerned with fitting themselves into that secure little suburb, and not concerned enough with what is going on about them.

There is no doubt in my mind that the entire motivating force behind the school is the fraternity system. The competitive spirit developed by the fraternity is the backbone of support for all institute functions.

If nothing else, one should learn a genuine respect for others; a responsible dignity for oneself; a dedicated honor to one's principles.

Frank Canzano

My life at college is like my kid brother's dog . . . It howled and cried all night long, begged and smelled, but after the dog died it was another story . . . It was a good dog.

I won't miss RIT, the buildings or the classes, but my friends here are different. The school isn't much, so the people have to make up for it . . . But that's life, the people make the whole difference and that's the part that is a little hard to leave.

Tom O'Malley

Let each man become what he is capable of being. People complain about the poor conditions at RIT and this is nonsense. There are many opportunities here for those who will take advantage of them.

To Freshmen: Learn how to do an honest day's work.

To Sophomores: Realize what is offered and reap the benefits of the academic as well as social education.

To Juniors and Seniors: Be students rather than passive pupils; active in the responsibilities of education, supporting the school's activities while broadening your own horizons.

I feel that RIT has prepared me well for entering the printing field, but there are improvements that could and should be made. It seems in some ways that the Institute is stepping backward to accommodate the aptitudes of the students, rather than raising the admission requirements to be more selective.

College has taught me a great deal, but now it's time to move ahead, for our education never ceases.

McCurdy's is proud and happy to participate in the awarding of gift certificates to RIT's Mr. Campus and Miss RIT for 1964. You're always welcome to come in and browse around and our staff of salespeople is well versed in latest trends for college students.
