Dr. Diane Hope, William Kern Professor of Communications in the Department of Communication has won the 2007 National Communication Association Visual Communication Division Research Excellence Award for her book, Visual Communication: Perception, Rhetorics, Technology. The chair of the Awards Committee, Janis Edwards, wrote about the award, "it is somewhat unusual for edited books to be recognized in this manner, however, your efforts at bringing this group of scholarship to the fore through the RIT [Kern] series of conferences on technology and visual rhetorics, combined with your editorial vision mandated this selection."
