ByStudents is a forthcoming series of college guidebooks and website that will feature reviews and content written by students who attend America's top colleges. The publication will be hiring two student liaisons at the Rochester Institute of Technology.

Interns will have the opportunity to write published, bylined material relating to college life and their own college experience, collaborating weekly with the professional editorial staff in our New York office. They will also help research, design and execute an effective peer outreach program, both on their own campus and on campuses nationwide.
