A major Rochester, NY public relations firm has Summer Co-op positions available and they are interested in Department of Communication students. These paid positions are for a 40-hour work week, just like the rest of the firm's staff, and the Co-op student is assigned to a few account teams. In essence, the Co-op supervisor writes, "they'll be doing the same work as an entry-level account coordinator. We aim to schedule interviews for the second half of this month, with a final decision secured in early April."
