Dateline: RIT e-newsletter highlights

See your e-mail inbox for the March edition of Dateline: RIT.

This month's e-newsletter features a whopping three "news hits" that appeared within a few days of one another in The Wall Street Journal, along with other news placements. Getting mentioned in WSJ every so often is a huge accomplishment; receiving three mentions in a period of less than two weeks is almost unbelievably great for most people or places. Check out the articles featuring comments from RIT's Frank Romano, Brian O'Neil and Nabil Nasr.

Plus, you'll find links to the most recent episodes of "Dateline: RIT – The Podcast," campus news highlights from News & Events (including the latest on the RIT presidential search), and details about upcoming events, such as the third annual Finger Lakes Regional FIRST Robotics Competition, hosted by RIT next weekend (March 9-10).

If you're not a subscriber, what are you waiting for? Keep up with the latest RIT news by signing up for a free subscription at www.rit.edu/news/dateline. Or, to read Dateline: RIT online, click the link, "Read a Web version."

For the latest RIT news placements, visit www.rit.edu/news and see "RIT In the News." Here's one from today—an op-ed in the Democrat and Chronicle about former President Bill Clinton's RIT Commencement address this spring. Many of us in University News believe the opinion expressed is right on the mark . . . and it kind of makes up for a somewhat misleading D&C article on the same topic earlier this week.

Have a great weekend!
