

Mary Lou Basile given Eisenhart Award

May 1, 1998

Mary Lou Basile, associate professor in NTID's Business Occupations Department, is a recipient of the 1998 Eisenhart Award for Outstanding Teaching at RIT. Basile, who began working at NTID in 1975 in the sign language department, now teaches business graphics, desktop publishing, and advanced word processing as well as economics and fundamentals of management and marketing. Highly regarded by her students and peers, Basile also presents workshops on teaching effectiveness, leadership, and managing group communications. She recently had a paper she co-authored approved for publication in the Journal of Deaf Studies--Deaf Education, "Learning Styles of Deaf College Students and Teaching Emphases of Their Instructors."
