

Monica Haley: PTC Alum, Marketing Communication Manager & First Responder

Bruce A. Austin baagll@rit.edu

28 January 2009

Virginia resident Monica Haley, a 2003 Professional & Technical Communication alumna, reports she is beginning her fourth year at the Association for Manufacturing Technology “with a promotion to a new department, Marketing and Communications Manager.” Until just now, she writes, “I’ve been a research librarian and graphic designer for their tradeshow, International Manufacturing Technology Show (www.IMTS.com). The position as marketing and communication manager has been newly created since they had not had a Communications Department until this month. I’m traveling quite a bit these days to conferences – so if anyone from the DOC is going to be in Austin for SXSW let me know, I’ll be there for the interactive portion of the conference.”

In addition to her professional responsibilities at the Association, Monica adds, “I’m beginning my third year as a operational member of the Vienna Volunteer Fire Department. I’m on the Board of Directors and spend plenty of time as an EMT and ambulance driver with the volunteer and career staffs.”