

Digital Communication Manager, Full-time Position

Bruce A. Austin baagll@rit.edu

22 May 2009

Earthwatch (Oxford, United Kingdom) seeks applicants for a full-time position as a Digital Communications Manager. The successful applicant will be responsible for developing and implementing a digital communications strategy for Earthwatch that raises the organization's profile among target audiences and delivers online communication needs for other departments and programs. Earthwatch's digital strategy includes website content management, search engine optimization, and production of rich media (e.g. videos and podcasts) for the Earthwatch website (and associated micro sites) as well as e-communication, online advertising, and social networking.

For more information visit http://www.earthwatch.org/europe/get_involved/jobs/